

After experiencing a restless level of anticipation from the students across colleges, Enactus Aryabhata does justice to the long wait with 'Enactus day 2.0', the event experienced a prodigious response and ended with an extremely contented list of guests.

The event began with all the focus being directed towards the project 'UTKARSH' stall which resulted in the delectable wafers selling out so quick, even comparing them to 'hot cakes' would be unjust, the customer's response at the event has indeed assured the group of students that their project is moving in a propitious direction.

Next in sight came the game stalls, with the 'Lucky Uno' game compelling people to repeatedly try out their luck or maybe somehow look through the face down cards to hold the numero uno position in this game of chance, the 'Magic brick' game brought out the Arnold Schwarzenegger within every participant and turned "I could easily do that!" into an impossible comment to make, Since, hot cakes have already been mentioned let's go ahead and compare the success of the handmade products to the sale of hot cakes, if anyone went home disappointed it's only because they couldn't get their hands on one of the Mason jars or lotus diyas before they sold out.

The event featured a mellifluous performance by the music society of Aryabhata college that had the crowd gather around and sing to the dulcet tunes of the group, the 'Lemon and spoon race' as anticipated brought out the vying sportsman within every participant.

Last, and it goes without say but definitely not the least 'Enigmus: The treasure hunt' had the participants do anything and everything to emerge as the ultimate raider, from running around the college campus looking for clues to making a human pyramid, the participants left no stone unturned in making this one of the most competitive events.

With 'Enactus day 2.0' experiencing a glorious end, the group of social entrepreneurs now looks forward to reaping similar success with their projects and continue to put in their complete efforts towards making this world a better place to live in, to making this world a place where we all win.
