Gender Sensitisation Committee:

During 2019-20, the Internal Complaints Committee at Aryabhata college collaborated with JPAL (Lateef Poverty Action Lab at MIT (Massachusetts Institute of Technology)) through Karmini Sharma, a PhD scholar at University of Warwick (United Kingdom). The collaborated project aimed to understand tools to tackle sexual harassment and aims to undertake surveys with students in the age group of 18 to 21 years of age to understand prevalence rates, correlates of sexual harassment and impact of sexual harassment awareness. This project focuses on sexual harassment in educational institutions. Sexual harassment and abuse on campus can cost universities millions of dollars not only in fighting lawsuits, but also in reduced alumni donations and prospective admissions. Ms. Sharma submitted a report to the college in December 2020 that draws on the data collected via surveys collected with informed consent of students over the academic year 2019-2020.

There were two rounds of the surveys, base line and end line. Some students were also provided with detailed sexual harassment awareness trainings by the collaborating NGO Safe city. For Aryabhata college, a total of 1334 students were covered in the baseline survey, with 849 men and 485 women. All 13 courses spread over 39 classes were covered between September and October 2019. This period also involved delivery of detailed sexual harassment awareness trainings. Sexual harassment awareness training was provided to a total of 870 students in collaboration with an internationally recognised NGO, Safe city. The surveys were undertaken after obtaining informed consent from each student. Less than 2% of the students refused to do the surveys. Finally, only those students were covered who were present in the class at the time of the unannounced surveys. The findings of the report are as follows:

- (a) Nearly 16% of the women report that they have faced some physical form of sexual harassment. Acts included in low and intermediate intensity events were also highly common at 44 to 47% respectively.
- (b) Around 12% of sexual harassment incidents of low intensity type, 8% of medium intensity type and 3% of extreme intensity type of sexual harassment events were perpetrated by someone from within college over the period of two months. Majority of perpetration comes from someone outside college. However importantly perpetration from inside college comes from someone female students knew or would most likely come in contact with on a repeated basis and may potentially be more harmful. Since the trainings in this project were provided to men, we can especially speak to the sexual harassment by women's peers.
- (c) As expected for this age group, prevalence rates are much higher for women (40%) than men (9%).
- (d) Majority of the women students report facing sexual harassment on their way to college. This is much higher than prevalence during college events for own or other colleges. Despite that, note that sexual harassment within college may be more harmful since there may be repeated interactions between perpetrators and victims creating repeated exposure for women. It is important to note that since female students report harassment mostly on their way to college, it may be important to think about safer means of public transportation for female students.

- (e) Majority of the students report sharing incidents with their close family or friends (57%) while only 5% share with any formal authority. This shows that having informal support networks may be particularly important for students to share sexual harassment incidents. This is more important given that nearly 40% male students and 25% female students come from outside Delhi without family support.
- (f) Around 27% of the students were able to identify ICC as the formal authority for redressal of sexual harassment complaints. However, the rest, nearly 70% of the students, perceive women development cell or the gender sensitisation committee as the formal authority. This clearly indicates a greater need for awareness amongst the student population of the college.

The college invited Ms Karmini Sharma to present the results of her study and survey to the teachers and students of the college. This presentation was given virtually on 28th July 2020 which was attended by the Principal and the teaching staff of the college.

A workshop on Life Skills and Social Negotiations was organised by Gender Sensitisation Committee on 1.11.2019. It was well attended and was inter-active in format. Slides and videos were shown on the subject. Story -sharing, role - play, dance and narrativisation were the key features of the workshop. It is interesting to note that the Resource Person, Ms. Nandita Prakash, an Educationist and Counsellor is an alumna of our college.

A Webinar on the online violence against women hosted by Gender Sensitisation Committee on 14 May 2020 on Zoom app. The speaker was Dr. Sujata, who is a Poet, Novelist, Blogger and Academician. Many students attended the same and an interactive discussion followed the Talk.

Awareness Drive on Environmental Hazards of e-Waste

An awareness drive by Karo Sambhav, one of the India's leading Producer Responsibility Organisation (PRO) on the topic “Environmental Hazards of e-waste” under the Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology’s (MeitY), was organized. Ms. Ritika Jain, Manager (EPR); Ms. Sakshe Vasudeva, Karo Sambhav Ambassador Programme Coordinator; and Mr. Kevin Valsan, Manager (EPR) were the guest speakers.

The programme is also being supported by the Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change (MoEFCC). Karo Sambhav is currently spread across 29 states, 3 union territories, and over 60 cities working countrywide with producers and globally trusted brands like Apple, Dell, HP, Lenovo, Cisco etc. to implement their Extended Producer Responsibility (EPR) service.

In the beginning, the students were made aware about e-waste and its inappropriate management across India, explaining the harmful hazards they pose to human health and environment. In India, about 4.5 lakh child labourer, (age 10-14), are observed to be engaged in various e-waste activities without adequate protection and safeguards in various yards and recycling workshops.

The lack of awareness about e-waste management has made India the fifth largest e-waste generator in the world. Karo Sambhav is involved in collecting the e-waste across India and delivering them to the recycling units following appropriate methods of managing e-waste with no child labour.

The speakers briefed the audience about how Karo Sambhav spreads awareness on importance of proper e- waste management They invited students to join hands with them and to work towards the social cause.

Following the speech, there was a wonderful interactive session where the students interacted with the speakers asking various questions and clarifying their doubts.

Interesting games were organized, in the end of the session. Students won exciting prizes made out of recycled items. It was indeed an informative session which motivated the students and faculty members to handle e-waste properly by handing it over to the authorized recyclers.

The session ended with the Karo Sambhav team presenting an Acknowledgement Certificate to our Principal, for the college’s participation in the awareness campaign.

Report on Dr Bonnie Zare's Special Lecture and Workshop

On 15th January 2019 the department of English hosted a special lecture on Toni Morrison, the much-acclaimed American novelist whose powerful writings on slavery, gender and race have been a source of hope and courage for many across the world. The event was jointly held by the English department and the Gender Sensitizing Committee of Aryabhata College in collaboration with Virginia Tech (USA).

The special lecture and 'Bringing in the Bystander' workshop- a program for prevention of sexual and gender violence was conducted by Dr Bonnie Zare and her excellent team of students from Virginia Tech who graciously accepted the invitation extended by Binoy Bhushan Agarwal to visit Aryabhata College for an international collaboration.

A first of its kind, this initiative is conceived of as special lecture series by distinguished international faculty members from across the world to engage and collaborate on interdisciplinary and inter-departmental levels to promote scholastic exchange and learn from the best academic practices. In his opening remarks, the Principal of the College, Dr Manoj Sinha, pointing to its rich potential said, 'special lectures like these would enrich our understanding by virtue of having multiple perspectives on issues concerned by academics from universities across the world'.

Dr Zare is an Associate Professor of Women's and Gender Studies at Virginia Tech. Her research focuses on discourse of identity, feminism and activism in contemporary India and in South Asian women's fiction. Her articles have appeared in Women's Studies International Forum, International Journal of Cultural Studies and the Journal of Commonwealth Literature among others. In 2008, she founded the Keep Girls in School Project which helps support low-income girls in Telangana and Andhra Pradesh. Her lecture for the day was titled 'Bodies in Beloved: Eroding White Supremacy through Embodied Knowledge'. In this she was joined by Hayley Oliver who also presented a paper on 'Ownership, Personhood and Love: An Analysis of Toni Morrison's Beloved'.

Under Dr Zare's supervision, the team members namely Alana Calhoun, Eryn Peters, Hayley Oliver, Ashley Mattson, Payton Johnson, Jordan Faulkner, Kelsey McGregor and Rebecca Sutton conducted the workshop on bystander intervention program to prevent gender and sexual violence. The Aryabhata student team led by Dr B. Mangalam also put up a striking performance that portrayed different shades of gender-based violence both in domestic and public spaces which was much appreciated by the audience including the American guests.

Overall, the lecture and the workshop witnessed full participation and much appreciation from students and faculty alike. Taking cue from its remarkable success, effort is on to host more international guests for special lectures in the days to come.

OUBAITORI
桜梅桃李

The word Oubaitori (oh-buy-toe-ree) uses the kanji characters of the four trees that blossom during spring - cherry, plum, peach and apricot. It's an idiom which expresses that people should cherish their individuality instead of comparing themselves to others. The spirit of Psychology, too, is much like the idiom Oubaitori.

7th March 2017: Social Construction of Gender in Ancient and Early Medieval India

Gender as a category of analysis has transformed our understanding of historical processes over the last few decades, both within and outside India. Transcending the notion of ‘anatomy shaping destiny’, historians have argued that the most fundamental social distinction that emerges across regions all over the world and chronological periods is that of gender. In Indian context also, a number of scholars have examined closely a variety of literary, epigraphical and visual sources, to argue that women and men are not born but are shaped by social attitudes and world-views. It is the process of socialization that leads to gender differences and distinctions. In this seminar, we seek to present the recent historical understanding on the social construction of gender in ancient and early medieval India. Faculty and Student members of the GSC attended the seminar and interacted with the Speakers. Sensitisation through curriculum related work was undertaken by the GSC in collaboration with the History Department of our college. Professor R Mahalakshmi, CHS/SSS/JNU, Professor Jaya Tyagi, Department of History, DU and Associate Professor Shalini Shah, Department of History, DU were the speakers who talked about different views pertaining to gender issues in ancient and early medieval Indian history and how it impinges on present context as far as gender is concerned.

The department of History organized a seminar on 7th March 2017 to celebrate the International Women’s Day. (8th March is celebrated as International Women’s Day worldwide) as the eminent speakers on the topic had prior commitment on 8th March so the seminar was held on 7th March 2017. Professor R Mahalakshmi, CHS/SSS/JNU, Professor Jaya Tyagi, Department of History, DU and Associate Professor Shalini Shah, Department of History, DU were the speakers who talked about different views pertaining to gender issues in ancient and early medieval Indian history and how it impinges on present context as far as gender is concerned. The seminar was informative and made lively and interactive by the faculty members of different courses and students in large number.

The Mental Health Week (3RD OF OCT 2016 - 6TH OF OCT 2016)

The mental health week was the academic endeavor of the Department of Psychology of Aryabhata College of Delhi University. The 4-Day program was convened by Dr. Shivani Vij and was initiated with a street play portraying the stigmatism attached to the mental issues and proper psychological aide in the Indian society.

Many activities were held throughout the week such as 'Bring a friend' campaign, expert talks on struggle of mental health, mass media and mental health, psychological first aid. The highlight of the week was the panel discussion on 'Youth for Health'. The workshop was concluded by an interactive session involving role play conducted by Sumaitri, an NGO, on depression and suicide prevention.

Nukad Natak

A street play titled "Dukhvit Dostan" was the first event of the mental health week. It aimed at spreading awareness amongst the masses regarding the importance of accepting the mentally ill and the imperative need to treat them with respect and dignity and also understand that putting them off from the society only worsens the situation. A big component about the campaign was about the friend aspect, because people are more likely to reach out to a friend whom they can talk about their mental health with, than visit a counsellor. The process involves building a friendly atmosphere for people to freely express themselves to. The best way to combat the stigma attached to mental illness is by openly discussing it, shame needs three things to thrive: secrecy, isolation, and judgment. Shame cannot survive being spoken and it cannot survive empathy. This Nukad Natak broke the ice and opened up a platform for people to come up and discuss their problems openly without an iota of doubt and shame. The play was appreciated by one and all.

Teachers' Day And Freshers' Welcome

"when we stride or stroll across the frozen lake, We place our feet where they have never been, we walk upon the unwalked, but we are uneasy, who is down there but our teachers? Water that once could take no human weight, we were students then- hold up our roots, supporting us, the teachers; and around us the stillness"

Our teachers, our pillars of success, our guiding lights who thrive to build a better society and work at the grass root level to nurture the bright budding minds.

Our honourable Principal Dr. Manoj Sinha set the ball rolling, encouraging and inspiring the first batch of Psychology students of Aryabhata College. With this began a new journey with new hopes, aspirations and expectations. He commended the teachers for their relentless efforts into making this department, as starting something new requires courage and perseverance.

Dr. R K Dwivedi elucidated our responsibilities pertaining to the code of conduct we as students need to abide by. The students wished their beloved teachers a very Happy Teacher's Day.

Dr. Shwani Vij formally introduced the association. And Behold! SRJAN was born!! SRJAN, derived from the Sanskrit word "SRJ", which means 'getting to the root and making something unique', was adopted as the name of this newly-formed association. Though SRJAN is still in its infancy, through the sheer dedication and hardwork of the enthusiastic and determined members, guided by their teachers, is bound to reach great heights.

The departmental Fresher's was one of a kind, organized and hosted by our teachers. Being the first batch of psychology, with no seniors to look up to, we were hailed and welcomed by our teachers. Followed by a small cultural programme by the members of the association which included a skit, on how the world is not segregated into just black and white but instead is in the shades of grey. A feet tapping dance performance by the students lightened up the atmosphere filling it up with zeal and charisma. To conclude the event a ramp walk was organized, which saw the spirited participation of the students, giving us our Mr. and Miss. Fresher's, Baptnishi Gargi and Ishna Verma, respectively.

Gender Sensitisation Committee

The Gender Sensitisation Committee held interactive discussion amongst students drawn from different disciplines to spread awareness on gender parity. The committee elected two Student Mentors who initiated discussions under the supervision of the convenor on issues related to stalking, acid attacks and sexual assaults on minors of both genders. Students actively took part in these discussions strengthening the ongoing process of gender sensitisation. We hope to widen the base of target audience to include teaching and non-teaching staff in the coming years.
