The course seeks to familiarize the students with basic concepts related to some contemporary economic issues. Its aim is to equip the students with sufficient knowledge and skills so as to understand media discussions, and to critically analyze contemporary issues that figure in high-profile government documents, in particular, the Economic Survey and the Union Budget. Such capability is necessary to understand government policies and to increase people's participation in economic decision-making. The course will also help to relate the theoretical frameworks of the Microeconomics and Macroeconomics courses to the Indian context, and to prepare students for the more detailed treatment of Indian economic issues in semesters V and VI. The emphasis in the course will be on conceptual understanding, not data.

Course Objective:

The purpose of this course is to inform the basics of international trade theory and to examine the effects of international economic policies on domestic and world welfare. This course develops a systematic exposition of models that try to explain the composition, direction, and consequences of international trade, and the determinants and effects of trade policy. Although the course is based on abstract theoretical models, students will also be exposed to real-world examples and case studies.
