Indian Ocean Port Cities and Their Hinterlands

Building on collective momentum from the previous "Indian Ocean Port Cities and Their Hinterlands Workshop" in September 2019, the second installment of the Workshop was held on Zoom on 23-24 October 2020, gathering 25 worldwide participants (including eight panel presenters) selected by Professor Duane Corbis, Professor Tansen Sen, and the Center's doctoral and postdoctoral fellows from a total of seventy submissions in an open call. Eight scholars from Asia, South Africa and Europe presented their research on port cities in the Indian Ocean, ranging from Durban, South Africa, across the far southwest of the Indian Ocean, to cities such as Calcutta, Ayuthaya, Bombay, Bencoolen, Djibouti, Madras, Calcutta, Rangoon, Chittagong, and Aden, from the seventeenth century to today. Each panelist made a ten-minute presentation, followed by an extensive discussion of the pre-circulated papers. In contrast to our previous workshop, which focused on trade networks, labor migration, and governance structures within port cities, this second workshop touched upon diverse themes, such as gender relations, commodity circulation, gift-giving, and knowledge transfer.

After introductory comments from Tansen, the morning session began with a presentation by Manami Goto on the origins and diffusion of different types of face masks in the coastal areas of the Persian Gulf and the Western Indian Ocean, as well as the manner in which these were adapted and reshaped by the region's maritime connections. This was followed by Prerna Agarwal, whose paper examined a particular strike episode in order to investigate the emergence of worker politics and the extent of connections established between workers of various occupations both within and outside the Calcutta docks. In her paper, Marina Kaneti challenged gendered representations across the Indian Ocean with their implicit focus on these ports being an exclusive domain of masculine patriarchy. Instead, her paper demonstrated the centrality of women in shaping maritime interactions in the pre-colonial world.

In the afternoon session, Andrew MacDonald discussed the ecological, political, and commercial transformations that developed Durban into a key gateway for trade and a site for the confinement of a mobile laboring population. In the final presentation of the day, Elke Papelitzky discussed how the Chinese, Dutch, and French sources mentioned the challenges sailors encountered while sailing in the Gulf of Thailand to the port city of Ayutthaya in the fifteenth and eighteenth centuries.

The second day started with Xu Zhexin's paper on medieval maritime trade, the regional history of southeastern China, and the role of the often marginalized hinterlands. Following this, Madhumita Chatterjee's presentation argued that medieval port cities like al-Fustat (Old Cairo), Aden, Nahrwara (Patan), Cambay, Ghogha, and al-Manjrur (Mangalore) did not function merely as conduits for commercial expansion but also as sites for community formation and the articulation of emotional ties among Arab Muslim and Jewish mercantile communities. Binoy Bhushan looked at port cities as messy contact zones for studying cross-cultural encounters and the transnational dynamics of race, class, and caste relations in colonial Calcutta. In the final paper of the afternoon session, Amrita Chattopadhyay pointed out the centrality of trade in perfumes in commodity circulation and

When planning an event such as this, it is imperative to gain the participation of experts in their respective fields. Your willingness to share your wisdom and expertise on the theme of "Referencing and Research paper structuring using "Mendeley" software" was critical to the success of this event.

We would like to express our sincere gratitude to you for making it a successful and resourceful session for all our participants. It was indeed an honor for us to listen to you on this contemporary and useful topic. We acknowledge and appreciate the sincere efforts put in by you to interact with the audience and clear their doubts up to their satisfaction.

Subject: Letter of Appreciation

Madam

It gives me immense pleasure in expressing my sincere appreciation for your informative session as the Resource Person for the Webinar organized by the Department of Commerce of our college. Your years of research, your depth of understanding of student issues, and your ability to present the subject in such an interesting way produced one of the most memorable events. I personally appreciated your approach to anticipating users' intents. The subject is intriguing, and very relevant for everyone especially the young students.

I am writing this letter to extend my heartiest appreciation towards you for delivering such a wonderful lecture on "Work Life Balance – Relevance for the Young Minds" on 26.12.2020. Your knowledge on the subject is too vast and the positive feedback shared by the students speaks volume about the success of your session.

Thanking you

Sincerely yours

(Dr. Ramesh Kumar)
Principal (Actg.)

Industrial Visit to Parle Factory, Bahadurgarh

The Department of Business Economics, Aryabhata College organized an industrial visit to Parle Agrovet Factory in Bahadurgarh, Haryana on 13th February 2020. Five teachers and twenty seven students were part of this visit.

The students assembled at the factory at 10:30 in the morning. The visit commenced with a short film about the history of Parle, its products, and how the company evolved. After the film, the students were ushered inside the factory. The first manufacturing line shown was of Monaco Biscuits and Krackjack Biscuits, where the biscuits were being cooled and packed. Second, the students watched the packing of Parle Chips and its variants. In total, five Parle products were being manufactured in the Bahadurgarh plant. It was a new and interesting insight for the students.

Ms. Hanisha Dalal, senior management executive, held an interactive session with the students. All students participated in the discussion. Questions regarding Parle's product positioning competitive strategy were raised. She gave a detailed insight into how Parle made its market, expanded its manufacturing and product portfolio to stay in tune with the market. With shift to biodegradable packaging, questions on Parle's future strategies were also asked. At the conclusion of the visit, students were handed out Parle candies and chips.

On the night of 5th February 2020 ninety management undergraduates from our college directed their steps towards HR 55 AH 8408 to commence a journey they would always reminisce about. Sankalp- the Management Society of Aryabhata College organised the Annual Industrial Visit 2020 to Nahar Industries Enterprises Limited (NIEL) and Mahindra Swaraj in Chandigarh from 5th February 2020 to 7th February 2020.

With a motive to gain hands-on experience of operations and production of the manufacturing firms, the 213 km journey commenced at around 2330 hrs with full zeal and enthusiasm. The overnight journey was followed by check-in at the hotel. The undergraduates proceeded for the industry visit after the breakfast. The students visited NIEL followed by Mahindra Swaraj.

Nahar Industries Enterprises Limited is a subsidiary of Nahar Group of Companies also known as OWM. The group is a leading industrial house of northern India, continuously growing and diversifying its activities for economic prosperity of its shareholders and stakeholders, while engaging itself to the well-being of community and environment. Emanating in 1949 as a small woollen worsted spinner and Hosiery manufacturer, Nahar Group has grown itself as leading textile giant of Northern India manufacturing. Apart from textiles, the group is diversifying into new areas and as on date the group is engaged into Sugar Manufacturing, BOPP film, Investments, Lending, Financial Advisory, Solar Power Generation, Wind Mills and Non-Conventional Co- Generation Power Plant etc. The industry is located in Dappar District, Mohali (Punjab).

The students gained insights on the various operations ranging from spinning, weaving & processing. The students were also enlightened with cost-reduction measures adopted by the firm and how the firm adjusts its policies and strategies pertaining to the high competition in the Asian Textile Market. The management also gave an overview on the CSR activities performed by the firm. The firm has a wide clientele ranging from major domestic brands to top international brands like GAP, TARGET, TOMMY HILFGER, COLOR PLUS, BLACKBERRY'S, MONTE CARLO and many more. The textile division accounts for 92.20% (including inter-segment) of the total turnover of the company for the year ended 31st March, 2019. The Company has produced 67,224 MTs of yarn in 2019. The Company has produced 804.70 lacs meters of fabrics (both grey and processed).

Swaraj Tractors was established in Punjab in 1970 and rolled out its first tractor 724 in 1974 for commercial purposes. Initially named Sartaj, Swaraj was later acquired by Mahindra Group in 2007. Despite being the oldest tractor 724 is still one in most demand. The current division manufactures 24 hp to 70 hp tractors while above 70 hp are manufactured in the Mohali Division. Internationally Swaraj ranks amongst Top 10 manufacturers while domestically it stands at second position in terms of market share. The firm works on Demand-based Model thereby adjusting itself efficiently on the number to be produced. The firm aims to acquire the first position as a part of its Vision 2020 initiative by improving the quality of its products. It has successfully achieved its Vision 2019 of being in Top 2 manufacturers. In the last five years it has successfully increased its production capacity by around 55%. The division's employees at shop floor level have also presented various projects at national and international level recently at Japan. The firm has adopted various measures to reduce overall carbon and water footprint. The firm also trains its employees with international standards of curriculum thereby working towards enhance operational efficiency. The firm focuses on boosting employees' morale in order to increase productivity with development workshops to make the employees multi-skilled.

Every model is specialised as per customer requirement (XT Extra Torque, XM Extra Mileage FE Fuel Efficient). The firm has also been awarded with accolades from Quality Circle for maintaining quality and safety standards. The factory is divided into two parts – LMS (Light Machine Shop) for light gears and HMS (Heavy Machine Shop) related to heavy machine parts such as gear box and engine assembly. The factory incorporates a Heat Treatment Shop which is a confined space accessible to only highly trained employees. The hardening and cooling takes place through heating and soaking process. The assembly of the tractor takes place entirely using automated machines involving minimal human intervention. The tractors are painted using their own paints to ensure the quality using the Cathode Electrode dripping process. Overall Mahindra is slightly ahead of Swaraj in terms of Quality however Swaraj has an edge in pricing. The final test comprises of a Roller Test to keep a check on the air pressure followed by Road Testing. On an average a tractor is assembled in a time frame of 3.5 to 4 minutes.

"Can the Gap between Infant and Child Mortality be explained by Malnutrition in India?"

by Deb, Sujit

Abstract

Some recent findings indicate malnutrition as the major determinant of death burden among children in India. Although the association between malnutrition and mortality is well established for children below 4 or 5 years of age, exploration of the relation specific to infant or children's age group have remained limited. This issue is crucial considering the wide gaps that are observed between the infant and child mortality rates as well as the disparities between malnutrition prevalence at the relevant age groups of less than 12 months and 12 to 48 months. We consider the National Family Health Survey (2015-16) data from 29 states of India and examine the extent to which the malnutrition burden diverges across age groups and also attempt to link this with the gap between infant and child mortality rates across different states. Our results indicated greater correlation between death burden and malnutrition for the children's age in comparison to the infant age. As regards the burden of infant mortalities, the regression analyses revealed the role of other determinants, viz., women illiteracy, vaccinations, breastfeeding, dietary diversity or per capita income levels across states in India.

REPORT ON INDUSTRIAL TRIP TO BHEL BHOPAL

The Department of Business Economics has organized an Industrial visit to Bharat Heavy Electricals Limited (BHEL), Bhopal. This trip of four days to Bharat Heavy Electricals Limited (BHEL), Bhopal would always remain experience worth cherishing for all. There were 50 people in the visits including three teachers.

The journey to the 'City of Lakes' Bhopal started on 18th March 28, 2019 with everyone chattering on and around their seats of Thirukkural express. By the time students reached Bhopal in evening we already had a lot of laugh and enjoyment. The accommodation was arranged in BHEL Hostel. The next day students turned back to the pages of history by visiting not just Sanchi Stupa but also popular tribal museum and Indira Gandhi Rashtriya Manav Sanghralaya. The cycling in the zoo area gave a real sense of fulfilment later.

The heart of the trip lied clearly on the 20th March as students visited BHEL Bhopal unit –The biggest and oldest unit of BHEL. The heavy machineries there were enough to leave students astonished. Students witnessed the transition of manufacturing era from old manual machinery to the era of automation. After that they visited different heavy equipments manufacturing units like turbines, big generators and other products. After a good lunch in the campus, the interaction session between students and BHEL management followed. In the interactive session with management students gained information about working, management, product diversification, efficiency and their future business plan. Management also put a light on the challenges and benefits of being a Maharatna Company. After returning to the BHEL hostel in evening, students went to local area to explore the city, all of them had good time roaming nearby. Soon all the fun, knowledge full experience was about to end as students woke up to witness the last day of visit hurrying to get ready. Our next stop was Bhimbetka rock shelter which is declared as world heritage site by UNESCO where students witnessed the 100000 years old paintings in the caves Rest was all fun by enjoying on the rocks. This industrial trip was a great success. Students got into Bhopal express at night and reached Delhi on next morning.

To sum up, the visit was informative and wonderful one. This type of visit in Maharatna Company is once in a lifetime opportunity.

Abstract

*Rural-urban disparities have long remained as one of the major concerns in the development policymaking. The rural-urban divide in India however did not remain confined only within the income and earning differences, but also persisted in various non-economic dimensions. This paper examines the rural-urban disparity on the health, education and basic amenities dimension by developing an empirical framework for describing inequalities across different states in India. Our results indicate that there is a widening difference between the rural and urban areas in respect of health and basic amenities provision. It appears that the gap between rural and urban India is somewhat narrower in the educational dimension. While policy formulations are aiming at better targeting and delivery mechanisms, wide gaps between the rural and urban seems to have appeared in the provision of social infrastructures in many states of India. Regional Differences and Ownership Roles in the R&D and Innovation Activities of Chinese Industrial Enterprises

science-technology-innovation

regional variation

R&D behaviour

ownership status differences

China

China is emerging as one major R&D business interest as the global R&D operations started to expand their geographic reach to selected destinations. The fast paced growth in both the domestic and foreign investment in R&D is often interpreted as China's domination in the global technological competition. This paper investigates the regional differences and ownership pattern of technology and innovation in China's industrial enterprises. Our results illustrate the increasing importance of R&D expenditures as a driving force for generating innovation in China. However, the provinces of Jiangsu, Guangdong, Shandong, Zhejiang, Anhui and Shanghai are found to dominate in the R&D expenditures, number of inventions, new product development expenditures, sales revenue and export of new product for Chinese industrial enterprises. It is also observed that the share of domestically-owned enterprises remains prominent in the criteria like R&D expenditures, inventions, new product development, expenditure on new product development and sales revenue in China.

Dear Principal,

SEED- CHEST is happy to announce the Leadership Development programme for Deans of Universities, Directors of CDCs and Principals of Colleges – Three day workshop on Managing Excellence and Innovations in emerging Fourth Industrial Revolution from 28-30th December, 2017 at New Delhi.

The programme addresses issues of change caused due to use of IoT and AI in several production and distribution processes and services. It has resulted in change in expectations of markets, industry, public enterprises and government from new generation students and researchers. Universities and Colleges have to, therefore, constantly change and respond to new situations. It is therefore, imperative that leaders in universities and colleges discuss these issues in peer group workshop along with experts and chalk out their areas of operations for achieving excellence and innovations in the universities and colleges. The above programme attempts to address this need. We would request you to attend the workshop and benefit the College from the deliberations and future action plans.

Information Brochure covering objectives and outcome of the workshop along with Registration Form is attached to facilitate you to participate in the programme.

Looking forward to your positive response and with regards

Sincerely Yours

(GD Sharma)

Sub: Invitation to deliver Keynote Address

Dear Dr. B. Mangalam,

Greetings from Zakir Husain Delhi College (M)

The English Literary Society, Zakir Husain Delhi College (M) is organising a one-day national students' seminar on the topic "Narratives Beyond the Centre: Marginal Characters in World Epics" as part of Rhapsody '18: The English Department Fest on 28 February 2018.

The seminar brings together research papers by young scholars from colleges and universities on the literary, historical, philosophical and social possibilities of reviewing epics from the perspectives of characters that find themselves away from the centre. The seminar is a platform for students to discuss and debate the marginal characters in world epics in their different manifestations, and also shed light upon their various formal, thematic, cultural, and literary representations.

It is our great pleasure to invite you to deliver the keynote address on the theme of the seminar as a preamble to the students' presentations and discussions. Your erudite scholarship and experience, we hope, will be enlightening for our faculty and students. We sincerely hope that you will accept our invitation and will deliver the keynote address for the national students' seminar on "Narratives Beyond the Centre: Marginal Characters in World Epics."

Thank you.

A Study on Consumer's Perception About Corporate Social Activities/Responsibilities with Special Reference to Companies in FMCG Sector of India

Shivani Raheja

Research Scholar, Aryabhata College, University of Delhi

ABSTRACT

India has become the first country in the world to make corporate social responsibility (CSR) mandatory by way of notifying amendments in the Schedule VII of The Company Act, 2013 in April 2014. CSR has become a much researched topic both in India and abroad. Some think of it as Corporate Citizenship or Corporate Conscience others as Social Performance or Sustainability Strategy or and few others as a mere Corporate gimmick to lure customers and generate sales. 'Whether or not' and 'What kind of' CSR practises will be followed by a certain company is deep rooted within the personal value system of the managers, the reasons are genuine or not are either known to the manager him/herself or the participants of the secret board room discussions. However, one of the most important stakeholders: Consumers rarely have a clear knowledge or understanding of what is going around in the name of CSR and what actually can be termed as a genuine CSR effort by the company, while buying any of its products. A very less number of significant studies have been done in Indian Context to check what the end consumers' think of CSR drives of companies or are they actually aware of 'what is CSR?'.

This paper is a partial submission of the research work done under Ph.D. requirement in the specified topic. This research paper is a contributory part of the major study done under the Ph. D submission requirements of the author. In this paper, the author has tried to explain the CSR from the consumer's perception, what FMCG companies in India do in the name of such CSR practises, an attempt has been made to check whether the consumers are supportive of such CSR practises and finally to identify the gaps between what companies does and what the consumers expect. Based on the primary data collected from the consumer's via the personal surveys/questionnaires, at the end of the paper we will provide insights into the following questions:

- (1) How do Indian consumers perceive CSR? Are Indian Consumers supportive of CSR?
- (2) What CSR dimensions become more important for Indian consumers?

KEYWORDS: CSR, Corporate Citizenship, Corporate Conscience, Social Performance, Sustainability Strategy, CSR Practices, Stakeholders, Consumer's Perception, Genuine CSR, FMCG Companies.

RESEARCH OBJECTIVES

The aim of undertaking this research work is to increase our comprehension of Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) from the consumer's perspective in an Indian context. The main purpose of the research is two- fold:

- To study the Perceptions and the value of Corporate Responsibility Activities for Indian Consumer's And
- To analyse what do multinationals understand their responsibilities towards society to be and how does that differ from what their Consumer's believe they should be?

The broad objectives are

- To study the Perceptions and the value of Corporate Responsibility Activities for Indian Consumers.
- To understand the nature of societal expectations regarding corporate social responsibility behavior shown by companies.
- To study the relationship between purchase decision and CSR.

Abstract

While the urbanization process has undoubtedly contributed to the economic growth in South Asia, the cities are facing challenges of population pressures on infrastructure, housing, basic services and the environment. This paper examines the comparative growth of secondary and primary cities among major economies of south-Asia and subsequently examine whether the system of city growth bear any implication for the divergences in regional economic growth. We carry out the analysis using data from four major economies from South Asia, viz., Bangladesh, India, Pakistan and Sri Lanka during the period from 1970 to 2015. The majority of the urban agglomerations in Bangladesh, India and Pakistan are in fact medium or small sized cities with less than 5 million or even lesser number of inhabitants. Correspondingly, the highest share of urban populations in Bangladesh, India, Pakistan and Sri Lanka are located in small sized agglomerations with less than 300, 000 inhabitants. Our results indicate that small and medium cities yielded positive impacts on economic growth, while the impacts of primary or large cities remain statistically insignificant across countries. There is also an indication that the impacts of medium and small cities impacted significantly on the economic growth for India. (197 words)
