"Be yourself, because an Original is worth more than a Copy."

Greetings from Department of Business Economics!

The Business Economics Department organized its Eighth Session of Confab on 2nd November 2017. We had invited Ms. Prerna Bhatia to be the speaker for the day. Ms. Bhatia is the Founder President of Nurturing Dreams and Youth Coordinator of The Rising NGO since 2007. An Alumni of University of Delhi, Perna has conducted various workshops and seminars as a motivational speaker.

Ms. Bhatia conducted the seminar on the topic: You were born an Original, Don't die a Copy. She began her session with a long enthusiastic applause and mentioned that an applause can keep 62 diseases away including heart and cancer-able diseases. She explained how to find your inner value and grab the opportunity to put it to use through an example of a rock. She broadcasted videos of people including Shah Rukh Khan, Ranveer Singh, Freida Pinto and Navjot Singh Siddhu who found their inner voice and worked hard to become one. Her examples showed that Originality exceeds more than a copy. There is no other person like you, you are Original.

Throughout the session, she talked about how the key difference between Original and Copy lies in the work ethic. She encouraged everyone to start pushing for that extra mile from that very moment in whatever they love to do.

Business Economics Department was truly delighted to have Ms. Bhatia deliver such motivational talk that will definitely change the perspective of the students for their life! Around 50 students registered for the Confab; the participants were given light refreshments after the session.
